A NEW WITNESS.

Mrs. Louise Lowell Testifies Against the Colonel.

She Was Employed By Him as a Stenographer in His Correspondence With Miss Pollard.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A battle royal of wits between ex-Congressman Jere Wilson and Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge was expected today after the interesting sparring of yesterday. Both are men of the greatest ability, and pitted against each other as examiner and witness they manage to furnish a fine display of mental sparring. Interest was intensified by the presence of two ladies in the court whose faces had not been seen before, sitting at the table with the Pollard forces, and from the passage which had closed the examination of the day before, it was supposed that one of them must be Louise Lowell, the stenographer and typewriter, who had a desk in the capitol in 1886, and to whom letters were dictated by Colonel Breckinridge, if the claims of the plaintiff be true.

Mrs. Lowell is at present a clerk in the treasury department and is a woman of short stature, with hair beginning to turn gray. She wore this morning a dark green gown, trimmed with narrow gilt braid. Judge Bradley does not seem to relish the testimony which Colonel Breckinridge is giving.

The judge occupies a chair beside the witness box, but on a platform behind a ponderous desk. Whenever Colonel Breckinridge begins to talk the judge wheels his chair around so that the heavy upholstered back is turned toward the witness box, and directs his gaze toward a far corner window, reads legal documents, or closes his eyes.

This same position was assumed by his honor soon after Colonel Breckinridge stepped into the box this morning after half an hour had been consumed in examining candidates for the regular April jury and excusing them until next Monday.

Mr. Butterworth at once opened the question of the admissibility of the correspondence alleged to have been held with Madeline Pollard in 1886. Judge Wilson, in reply, assured the court that the evidence had not been discovered until Sunday and asserted that he proposed to put the witness on the stand at once, that Colonel Breckinridge might not be taken by surprise and that he might have ample time to make explanations.

Thereupon Mrs. Louise Lowell took a seat in the witness box.

She said that she had known Colonel Breckinridge since February, 1886, having become acquainted with him at the house of representatives, where she had an office to carry on business as stenographer and typewriter in the corridor by the committee on postoffices.

"Did you do work for Colonel Breckinridge?" Mr. Wilson inquired.

"I did."

"Did he bring manuscript of a letter to you?"

"He did, and I copied it in typewriter."

"How was that letter addressed?"

"I object," interrupted two or three of the Breckinridge attorneys, who protested that there was no proof of the letter having been mailed, but Judge Bradley said to sustain the objection would be to nullify the purpose of admitting the witness.

"The manuscript and copy had been returned to the colonel," Mrs. Lowell continued. From 1886 to 1890 she had copied manuscript, addressed envelopes and done Colonel Breckinridge's private correspondence and congressional work, always returning the manuscript.

"Now, what was on those envelopes?" continued Mr. Wilson.

"Miss Pollard, 74 Upper street, Lexington, Ky."

"And how do you remember that?"

"I kept a memorandum book in which I noted the address."

"Have you the book?"

"I have," she said, and the book was passed around for inspection of the lawyers.

"Feeling sure that sooner or later I would hear more of Miss Pollard, and not wishing to trust my memory, I made that memorandum," she explained, and continuing said:

"He brought me two or three envelopes separately, then a package of a dozen small ones, yellowed with age, and not such envelopes as a business man would use."

The question of the substance of those letters was objected to, and the objection sustained for the present. "The first communication," said the witness, "was addressed to 'My dear sister Louise,' and when Mr. Wilson urged that testimony of its contents should be admitted, Mr. Butterworth retorted that there was no proof that it had ever been mailed or received, reminding Mr. Wilson that it was the ground taken by him regarding the alleged forged letter of Miss Pollard's.

"I now give you notice if you have that letter to produce it," said Mr. Wilson to the defense.

"How can I produce the letter if I sent it to the plaintiff?" Colonel Breckinridge inquired in reply, whereupon Mr. Wilson remarked in his imitative way.

"You and I will have a little conversation after awhile." The witness, continuing, recollected that she had copied the letters for Colonel Breckinridge nearly every week, but said she could only prove having done fifteen or sixteen. The judge having ruled out examination concerning the contents of the letter, Mr. Butterworth made a brief cross-examination, asking Mrs. Lowell where she had worked and for how long.

She had kept a record of the work she did for congressmen, with the amount received in an account book. She had an independent recollection of the address of Miss Pollard, since the matter had made a very deep impression on her mind.

"Are you acquainted with Miss Pollard?" was asked.

"I never saw Miss Pollard until this morning." In her books she had merely entered the amounts of work done, the name of the party and the amounts charged, so that no congressman need waste worry for fear that that ledger will rise up and get them into trouble.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

The Behring Sea Bill Passed the Senate.

The Seigniorage Bill Again Brought Forward by a Contest Over the President's Veto.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The question of passing the Bland silver seigniorage bill over President Cleveland's veto was to have come before the house today, and active preparations have been made by the elements for and against the president's position. Representative Tracey, (dem.) of New York, sent 174 letters to democratic members who could be relied on to sustain the president. The letter is as follows:

"SIR:—Mr. Bland has given notice that Tuesday, April 3, he will ask to have the seigniorage bill passed over the president's veto. I am directed by the minority members of the committee on coinage, weights and measures, to urge you to be present in the house that day to remain until the vote has been taken. Respectfully,

"[Signed.] CHAS. TRACEY."

There is every probability, however, that the contest over the veto will be put off, owing to the deadlock over the contested election cases. The latter have the right of way by special rule, and Representative Patterson, in charge of them, says he will hold the floor all summer if needs be rather than surrender to the deadlock.

Representative Tracey says the veto will be sustained by a large vote. "It will not be far short of 200 if there is a full house," said he. "There will be the vote of those against the bill in the first place and the added vote of those who wish to sustain the president although formerly favorable to the bill."

Representative Bynum, (dem.) of Indiana, will make a speech voicing the position of those who favored the silver bill, but who will now support the president. Mr. Bynum voted with Mr. Bland on the bill, but they will part company on the veto. Representative McGann, of Chicago, and several others who voted for the bill have signified their purpose to support the veto, as they regard allegiance to the president more important than allegiance to this particular bill.

Representative Bland has arranged his program for the contest over the veto. It contemplates several speeches protesting against the veto. There is no limit to the debate, as the question of sustaining or defeating the president's action is one of high privilege. Mr. Bland has resisted propositions to send the veto to a committee as a means of avoiding embarrassment to those who favored the bill but do not want to antagonize the president. He will listen to no compromises, but insists on a legal battle and a vote. "If the republicans do not vote," said Mr. Bland, "we can pass the bill over the veto by a two-thirds vote of the democrats, but if the republicans vote they will probably sustain the veto." Mr. Tracy says it is absolutely certain that the republicans will vote.

The Behring sea bill passed the senate. Senator Morgan said that at this hour perhaps a similar measure was being passed in the British parliament.

A cable dispatch received at the navy department today announces the arrival of the San Francisco at Saint Lucia, West Indies, yesterday. She will take on coal there and proceed immediately to Bluefields, where she should arrive about Friday. There was no apprehension felt at the navy department because word was not received from the San Francisco yesterday, and officers of the department characterized the statement that alarm was felt for her safety as an outrage.

The struggle over the O'Neill-Joy contested election case is occupying the time of the house today. Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, says there shall be no adjournment until action is had. There are 193 democratic members in the city, fourteen more than a quorum, and it is the plan to arrest absentees and bring them to the bar of the house.

O'NEILL SEATED.

Mr. O'Neill has been seated by the house by a vote of 155 to 28.

Injured in an Accident.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—A Sacramento street cable car with a dozen passengers on board dashed down one of the steepest grades in the city last evening and telescoped another car standing on the crossing. No one was killed, but all the passengers were more or less injured. The list of injured is: Luke Morgan, Detective Robert Hogan, Miss Plunkett, Oripman O'Brien, G. A. Ewing.

THE ELECTIONS.

Result of Municipal Contests in Different States.

The Independent Voter Was in It and Party Politics Did Not Cut Any Figure.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—John A. Caldwell, republican member of congress from the Second Ohio district, has been promoted to be mayor of Cincinnati by yesterday's election. His plurality over Theodore Horstman, of the citizens' ticket, was 6,752, Horstman receiving 19,774 votes, and Isaac J. Miller, the democrat, 11,714, while the head of the people's party ticket got 299 votes. Horstman's greatest strength was in German wards and Caldwell ran astonishingly in democratic wards.

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 3.—The entire republican city ticket was elected, although many of the candidates suffered reduced pluralities. The candidate for police commissioner headed the ticket, and the principal contest was made for that office. The republicans have thirteen of the eighteen councilmen and seven of the nine aldermen. Interest centered in the Third ward contest, where W. I. Squire, ex-president of the Ohio Republican League of Clubs, and a candidate for president of the National league at the Louisville convention last summer, was defeated by a plurality of 502 on his private record.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 3.—The democrats elected Peter Olinger mayor, Michael McCarten auditor, John Stemm assessor, and four of the five aldermen. Olinger is a turfman. Tim Shea, the successful candidate for alderman in the Second ward, is locally known as "King of Dubuque sports." Mayor Dougherty, who headed the citizens' ticket, is personally popular, and was defeated because his platform called for an increase of saloon license. The election is taken to signify that the mulct law will be ignored here.

MARIETTA, Ohio, April 3.—All candidates for office were on independent tickets. The fight centered on mayor and was the saloon element against the better class. Jewett Palmer, the anti-saloon candidate, is elected mayor by 300 majority. The saloons put up large money and a great deal of beer and the fight was squarely against them.

DETROIT, Mich., April 3.—The results of the election in this state, as far as have been received, show republican victories everywhere. At Albion the republicans elected Alderman Martin Haven for supervisor. The democrats elected only three officers, two supervisors and one constable. The prohibition vote was somewhat larger than usual, due, it is said, to the A. P. A.

At Holland George P. Hummer was elected mayor on the democratic citizens' ticket, with small majority. Republicans elect other officers. At Lawton the republicans elect every republican nominee.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 3.—The republicans made nearly a clean sweep in the city and town elections in Western Michigan. In this city they elected E. B. Fisher mayor and the entire ticket, and carried Kent county for board of supervisors.

VAN WERT, Ohio, April 3.—The election yesterday was one of the most exciting ever held here. Both tickets were badly scratched. The main fight was for mayor and members of the board of education. The republicans elected every man on their ticket. Marshal Clippinger leads the ticket with a majority of 461, the largest majority ever given in the city. James Higgins, republican candidate for mayor, has a majority of 191. R. L. Glps and J. W. Lee, republican candidates for members of the board of education, have majorities of nearly 300.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON.

Such Is the Decision in the Schmidt Murder Trial.

The Prisoner's High Position and Great Wealth Brought to Bear to Save Her, But in Vain.

KOKOMO, Ind., April 3.—The jury in the Mrs. Augusta Schmidt murder trial after sixty-eight hours' deliberation, came in today with a verdict of guilty, fixing the punishment at ten years' imprisonment in the women's reformatory at Indianapolis. Mrs. Schmidt, who is a wealthy German woman and the daughter of the late Baroness Schindling, of the Province of Zewickus, Saxony, quarreled with Oscar Walton, one of her tenants, last October, and shot him dead as he stood in his doorway. She was indicted for murder in the first degree and denied bail by the supreme court to which she appealed. She is forty-two years of age, has a husband and three children, and recently came into possession of a fortune of $100,000. Efforts will be made to secure a new trial. The woman threatens to kill herself.

TIMBER BURNED.

A Big Fire in Pennsylvania—Burned to Death.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 3.—A spark from a locomotive on the Lancaster and Downingtown railroad set fire to the forest on the Welsh mountains, near Bareville, last night. The flames spread rapidly, and by morning several hundred acres of timber were destroyed. The fire burned itself out, having spread to clearings in all directions. All attempts made to stay its progress were futile.

BOSTON, April 3.—Rev. I. M. Babcock, seventy-four years old, and a retired lecturer, was suffocated to death in bed by a slight fire in the lodging house at No. 5 Dover street. Two other lodgers were rescued from a window on ladders.

FROM REVELRY TO RIOT.

A Mask Ball Terminates in a Fight and Murder.

The Drunken Occupants of a Box Precipitate the Fracas by Disorderly Conduct.

NEW YORK, April 3.—From revelry to riot was but a step, and a short one at that, at the Mask ball of the Carmencita club in Tammany hall at about 4 o'clock this morning. There were upon the floor and the boxes not far from 1,500 persons, and though the bar was closed there was no lack of intoxicants, so that when the disturbance began many persons were crazed with drink. Roundsman Shay precipitated the trouble by undertaking to stop the performance that was going on in a box occupied by Eddie Hirsch, keeper of a Coney Island dance hall, and a party of his friends. The officer was told to mind his own business, whereupon he tried to pull Hirsch from the box. Instantly a rush was made for the officer. Other policemen in the hall went to Shay's assistance. Bottles and chairs were made use of by the crowd. Clubs were swung lustily and many heads felt the force of the locusts. In the midst of the melee the lights were extinguished, but the struggle did not even then abate. When the lights were again turned on one man was lying dead upon the steps leading to the street. His name was Terence Gallagher, aged thirty-three years, a race track tout, whose residence was 122 East 125th street. Matt Buckner, a Baxter street puller-in, had his head cracked and may die. George Bernstein, a barkeeper, was badly cut in the hand. The fight lasted until a call sent to the nearest police station had brought to the hall a detail of officers strong enough to overawe the frenzied crowd. The police say that Gallagher's death was caused by heart disease. It is alleged that Roundsman Shay, whose effort to stop a skirt dance in Eddie Hirsch's box brought on the row, had been drinking and was, in fact, drunk. The organizer of the Carmencita club is Edward Cortey, an ex-detective and a former partner of Billy McGlory, of "Dive" fame. Cortey now has a saloon at 115 East Fourteenth street. The program shows that among the honorary members are the leaders of several east side political clubs.

SUPPRESSING NEWS.

Governor Tillman Has Seized all Telegraph Offices.

Governor Waite Expresses Great Admiration of South Carolina's Chief Executive.

FLORENCE, S. C., April 3.—The telegraph office at Darlington is in the hands of the militia, who refuse to permit the transmission of messages to the newspapers. A simple message to the editors of the Charleston News and Courier, saying that "the militia has received a supply of blankets by express," was endorsed "office under military control; guard refuses to let it be sent." General Richbourg claims that he has no discretion in the matter, so he is acting under Governor Tillman's orders.

DENVER, Col., April 3.—Governor Waite expresses great admiration for Governor Tillman, of South Carolina. He said today: "I met him at the bimetallic convention in St. Louis, and I was much impressed with his strength of character. It is my impression that if anybody can enforce the law down there, which is all the governor is trying to do, Tillman is just the man to do it. You see he is placed in much the same position that I am. The aristocracy of South Carolina is against him and the people are with him. There is this difference. His soldiers have refused to obey him and ours have not. But I think he will enforce the law if it can be done by anybody."

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A special to the Evening Star from Florence says: "A bulletin from Charleston says that an attempt was made to destroy the dispensary there this morning. A bomb was exploded in the rear of the building. No details of result given, but the statement that the police are guarding the dispensary indicates that the attempt was unsuccessful."

"KIMBALL'S GOT IT."

A Wonderful Diploma.

(The Musical Courier, Oct. 4th.)

We publish on a page of this issue a remarkable diploma extended by the World's Columbian Exposition to the W. W. Kimball company, of Chicago.

This diploma is an individual document applying to the Kimball pianos only. No firm of piano manufacturers could ask for a greater tribute to the various qualities of an instrument than that which has been accorded by the world's fair at Chicago to the W. W. Kimball company pianos. A careful perusal of it and a more careful study of it demonstrates that it gives to these instruments such commendations as place them far above the average piano manufactured in the United States.

The diploma represents the exact rescript of the report of the individual judge as agreed upon by the body of judges, constituting the official document on record.

The prophetic vision of the Musical Courier has been substantiated into a living fact, and for the present we have no more to say.

THE WAYNE CLUB.

Big Row Among Some of Its Leaders.

Senator Bell Resigns—Too Much Politics For Him—A Non-union Barber the Cause.

Trouble has broken out among some of the members of the Wayne club and politics caused it all. At a stormy meeting held last night Senator R. C. Bell resigned his membership. The trouble was evidently brought about by certain members endeavoring to use the club for furthering the political interests of Attorney W. H. Shambaugh, who is a member and one of the prominent officials.

A SENTINEL reporter called at the club this morning and talked with a prominent member who chanced to be in the reading room.

The whole trouble, it seems from what our reporter could learn from him and others, is over politics. One barber, who is employed in the rooms, it appears, was expelled from the Barbers' union for working over hours and on Sundays. The members of the club paid no attention to this, however, until the laboring men of Fort Wayne commenced a warfare against Shambaugh for being one of the officials in a club which employed non-union men. Friends of Mr. Shambaugh tried to fix up the matter until after the smoke of the political battle had blown away. Thus the row was started.

Hon. R. C. Bell did not like this kind of work and told them so in language decidedly plain and forcible. Things grew very warm for awhile and many high sounding phrases were used by members of the club. Mr. Bell's version of the affair to a reporter is as follows:

"Some time ago the club hired a barber and he was employed at so much a month, and was told that he would have steady employment. The club had fitted up a barber shop, not because they wanted to keep a barber shop but because they had allowed a young men's athletic club to occupy the upper story and these people had to have their baths and a shave after they got through exercising. This involved an expense of about $1,500, of which the young gentlemen of the club contributed something over $1,000.

"The club employed a barber at so much a week, expecting to lose money on his services. It was expected, however, that he would serve the convenience of members when they could not get shaved elsewhere and that the club, on account of the services out of hours, would stand any loss. It was a mere matter of convenience to the club. The barber left steady employment in the Wayne hotel barber shop upon the assurance that he would have steady employment by the club. Soon after this arrangement was made the Barbers' union raised objections that this barber was violating their rules as to hours namely that he worked after 8 o'clock p. m., and on Sundays before noon. They appointed a committee to wait on the club officers. The matter was presented to the board of governors, who appointed a committee to meet them. Mr. S. M. Foster and other members of the board of governors declined to serve on such committee on the ground that it might hurt them in their business, and myself, Mr. Will Breen and Mr. S. R. Alden were appointed a committee to confer with them. Myself and Mr. Breen met them one evening by appointment. Mr. Alden was not present at the meeting on account of diphtheria in his family at the time. We represented the facts to the committee of the barbers' union; told them we were not keeping a barber shop in any proper sense of the term. They demanded that we close at 8 o'clock in the evening and do no shaving on Sunday. This we declined to do and so reported to the board of governors and our action was by them approved. We said to them that if they expelled this barber from the union we would send away and get a non-union barber. This was reported and also approved.

"A subsequent meeting was arranged with our committee at which I was the only member present. I still adhered at that meeting to our former conclusion. This action was also reported to the board of governors and approved. When Mr. Shambaugh became a candidate for mayor he was opposed by the barbers' union on the ground that he was one of the board of governors that had taken this action. Up to this time we had heard no objection from Mr. Shambaugh. Afterwards a meeting of the board of governors was called which was not attended by a quorum and at which I was not present and of which I had no notice, when a resolution was passed directing the house committee to require the barber to rejoin the union from which he had been expelled, and to conform to all the union rules as to hours. Before taking employment of the club the barber had consulted me, saying that he would be likely to be expelled from the union, and I advised him to have a contract with the club for a year. He, however, took employment on the assurance that the club would stand by him. He was expelled from the union.

"A quarterly meeting of the members of the club was held last evening. I represented these facts and my action as a member of the committee and told them we could not in good faith go back on him. The original committee had never been discharged nor its action disapproved in any manner, and it was only a political exigency that called for a special meeting of the board of governors and a new committee and the action taken. I denounced this in the strongest terms possible, saying that it was a breach of good faith with the barber we were employing to take such action. I was opposed especially by Mr. R. B. Hanna and Harry Hanna, on the special grounds that to do otherwise would injure Mr. Shambaugh. I believed the whole thing was a false pretense and a sham and offered a resolution that the barber be instructed to continue according to his original employment. To avoid a vote on this a motion was made to adjourn by its opponents. This was declared carried on a rising vote by the secretary. I saw that he had counted numerous persons who could not find seats, and were standing up near the door. I saw that they were not thus voting and on a fair count the motion would be defeated by a large majority. I therefore questioned the accuracy of the secretary's count and demanded a recount for verification. This was refused by the president and the meeting declared adjourned over my protest.

"I thought this was shabby treatment. They had put me forward in a matter which the rest of them were too cowardly to attempt and there had been evident effort to pack the meeting tonight. I would not submit to such treatment and so told them, and offered my resignation as a member of the board of governors and of the club.

"Whenever they attempt to use the Fort Wayne club as a political machine for either party, I am done with it. One of the points made by Mr. Harry Hanna against my resolution was that it favored a violation of the law by shaving on Sunday. I then moved that no liquor be sold after 11 o'clock nor on Sunday, so as to entirely comply with the law, if that was what they were after. Of course the chairman did not recognize this motion. That would be too strict a compliance with the law.

"I don't care anything about the matter only I won't be used as a tool for any political party. It was openly asserted that the purpose of the action was to avoid opposition to Mr. Shambaugh's candidacy. I thought and still think it was a sham and believe I am a better friend of the laboring man than his professed friends, because I started as a laborer."

MOST CRITICAL INDEED

Is the Situation in the Coke Regions of Pennsylvania.

Nearly All the Works are Closed and the Disaffection Continues to Spread Rapidly.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 3.—The situation in the Coke region is now at the most critical stage. At first it was thought the Frick men would remain at work, but this impression was dispelled today when the men at Trotter came out. The company has made no attempt to resume and will probably not until the strikers cease their hostile demonstrations. A crowd of strikers assembled in the vicinity early in the day and although they are peaceable, their actions are such as to indicate an outbreak the moment the company attempts to start up. It is said a body of strikers intend to march to Frick's Davidson works this afternoon and force the men there to stop work. In the Scottdale district all the plants are still in operation. The feeling among the foreigners throughout the entire region is very bitter. They are said to be well supplied with dynamite, and will not hesitate to use it if the occasion presents itself.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 3.—Over 1,000 men gathered at the Oliver works, near here, today, armed with revolvers, clubs and stones, and attempted to force the English-speaking workmen into line, but failed. Several Hungarians refused to go and took shelter in the company's store, under the protection of the deputies sworn in yesterday. The rioters made a rush on the store, but were kept back at the point of bayonets. The Hungarians were induced to go to prevent trouble.

W. W. Kimball Company.

The W. W. Kimball company has started into the fair to get something and they have got it. A fine booth was erected, some elegantly incased pianos were displayed therein, and Mr. Irving L. Holt was placed in charge of the display. This booth has been well looked after, and the great number of dealers who have called have been ever well cared for. In addition to this work the Kimball Pianos have been in a number of state buildings, as well as played in concert. Backing all this work a splendid award was secured, which is being advertised all over the country.

The W. W. Kimball company went into the fair to get something and they got it, as we said before. Their dealers all over the country will feel the effects of this good work. Enterprise, enthusiasm, guided by brains, have done everything for the Kimball piano. Nor must their organs be forgotten. It has been a great year for Kimball.—Musical Courier, Oct. 11th.

Last night at Schroeder's hall the Hennessy Specialty company gave a very fine entertainment. Acrobats Zarrow and Brown were very fine as were Mr. Zarrow's little brother and sister. Mrs. Hennessy was also very good in topical songs. The company gives a splendid evening's entertainment. They show again at the same place tonight.

John Pauley is at Indianapolis, attending the hotel men's meeting.

CHANGES ITS NAME.

Second Presbyterian Church to Be Called the Westminster.

Congregational Meeting Held—The Golden Anniversary to be Celebrated Early in May.

Last night in the chapel of the Second Presbyterian church a very interesting congregational meeting was held. The attendance was large and the members were in an enthusiastic mood. D. F. Bower presided and C. B. Beaver was chosen secretary. Reports from all the church societies were read and accepted. They were of an encouraging nature and showed that during the past year the congregation had gained strength, not only in point of membership, but in the spiritual awakening which always follows united and earnest efforts.

The election of two trustees followed and F. W. Antrup and C. B. Beaver succeeded themselves. The other members of the board of trustees are Sol. Bash, G. R. Hench and George Niswonger, who hold over until next year. The selection of A. M. Baxter as deacon was also made. An auditing committee was chosen, consisting of Chas. S. Bash and H. B. Hunt.

One of the most important events of the evening was the changing of the name of the church from that of "Second Presbyterian church" to "Westminster church." This was done by almost a unanimous vote. Two other names were voted for, that of "Central" and "Olivet," but they were not supported by more than a half dozen votes.

The matter of fitly celebrating the semi-centennial anniversary of the establishment of the congregation was next discussed and it was left to the chair to appoint a committee of five to look after this. Westminster church will be fifty years old on Saturday, May 5th, and although that day is not far distant the congregation will see to it that the occasion does not pass unobserved. A strong effort will be made to have all the former pastors present. Among those still living are: Rev. Charles Beecher, brother of Henry Ward Beecher; Rev. T. W. Erdman, Rev. George O. Little, Rev. W. H. McFarland and Rev. J. M. Fulton.

The church was first organized by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who became so famous in later years. The congregation then consisted of twelve members and the church was first called the New School Presbyterian.

THE RANKS SWELLING.

One Hundred and Eighty-nine Names Now on the Roll.

Coxey's Commonwealers Now on the Last Stretch of the First Quarter of the Long March.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—The last march of the commonweal army to Allegheny, the first stage of the long journey to Washington, was begun at Sewickly at 9 o'clock. Not one of the weary fellows left camp last night, except twenty, who sought warmer quarters in the local lockup. A special order was issued by Carl Browne after breakfast, in it referring to the Judge Stowe incident last night. The judge is referred to as an objectionable character. The men are advised to behave during the next two days as attempts will be made to lead them astray. When Jack's run was reached a halt was ordered for lunch, after which the column again took up the weary march to Allegheny.

On the road to Allegheny the army was well received. All the schools were dismissed for the forenoon and the boys crowded out of town after the commonweal, cheering and singing. There were 189 men marching. As the road lay alongside the railway every passenger train that passed was cheered by the men and the passengers waved handkerchiefs in return. The whole progress is looked on by the leaders as an ovation. Marshal "Smith" says the men will be strictly confined to camp tonight and tomorrow. In view of the new contingents expected, another big tent has been ordered from Massillon.

CLUB REORGANIZED.

Base Ball Matters Begin to Look Up—Sport Promised.

Base ball matters are beginning to shape themselves and the outlook for sport this summer is quite encouraging. Last night the Fort Wayne club was reorganized. Owing to the absence of W. S. Wells, the former manager, Will Cherry was elected to that office in his place. Willard Holland, formerly third baseman for the Fort Wayne league team, was elected captain. The positions will be filled as follows. Catcher, Joe Antis; pitchers, Galloey and Voirol; first base, Cherry; second base, Bruton; third base, Heller; short stop, Holland; left field, Stahl; center, Baidy; right, Judy.

The dates for coming games are as follows:

April 8—Fort Wayne vs. picked nine from Tinners union, for benefit of that organization.

April 13, 14 and 15—Fort Wayne vs. Grand Rapids.

April 21 and 22—Fort Wayne vs. Detroit.

June 21—Chicago vs. Detroit.

DOORSTEP BABY.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Linding Become the Possessors of One.

Last night some one left a pretty little girl baby on the doorstep at the home of Phil Linding, No. 23 East Washington street. Mr. and Mrs. Linding have no children of their own, and gave the little foundling a warm welcome. The child was warmly dressed and was snugly tucked in a market basket. In the basket was a nursing bottle and a note, which read as follows:

Mr. Philip Linding:

"Knowing you to be a man of kind and charitable disposition, and that you have no children of your own, this little wanderer is left on your doorstep with the hope that you will be kind enough to care for her. Born March 25, 1894, of German descent.

"[Signed.] A FRIEND."

The little wanderer will be called Phillis.

Eliza A. Kelsey Fails to Get a Divorce.

A Bluffton Damage Case on Trial—Marriage Licenses and Court News.

The divorce suit of Eliza Kelsey against Henry Kelsey was on trial yesterday and today before Judge Dawson in the superior court, J. H. Aiken representing the plaintiff and Breen & Morris the defendant. The plaintiff asked for a divorce and alimony, alleging cruelty and neglect on the part of the husband. Some fifty witnesses, half of them being ladies, were in attendance, and the case was a hotly contested one on both sides. Judge Dawson, after listening to the testimony, decided that there was not sufficient evidence to support the allegations of cruelty and neglect and refused to grant a divorce to the parties.

County Recorder Fickel has recorded the following real estate transfers: John and E. Reineke to Charles E. Everett, twenty-eight feet of lot 3, Miller's addition, $1,500; C. F. Pfeiffer to L. D. and M. I. Elliot, west thirty-four feet of lot 5, Eichoff's sub-division, $1,575; Mary S. D. Landre to Dorothea Schapman, lot 33, Brand & Ayres' addition, $500; Fred and L. Miller to Geo. W. McKee, lot 6 and east twenty feet of lot 5, McCulloch's first addition, $1,000; Angie M. Carl to William E. Kelty, lot 1, Muldoon's sub-division, $1,000.

The case of Cooper against Baker, brought from Bluffton, is on trial to a jury in the circuit court. The action is for damages on account of the plaintiff being kicked by a horse. Mock and Simons are attorneys for the plaintiff and Colburn and Burns for the defendant.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES

As Viewed From an Independent Standpoint.

(Yesterday's Daily News.)

This week will occur the democratic primaries, and there will be a battle royal for supremacy between the law-abiding and law-breaking wings of that party. Mr. Shambaugh, who drafted the new charter, is in the hands of the saloon element, and in nearly every ward and in nearly every district there are councilmanic candidates who stand respectively for the interests of the saloon and those of the people. The result of the primary election will have a great influence upon the mayoralty contest; for if the vicious class shall predominate, and select a ticket composed of men who are pledged to keep this city under whisky rule, then decent democrats will be compelled either to unite upon an independent candidate, or to vote the republican ticket now in the field. One thing is sure, the fight is to be a bitter one and its outcome will be watched with intense interest.

HALLET & DAVIS.

A Most Extraordinary Record of Nearly Sixty Years.

When one looks back at the remarkable record made by the Hallet & Davis piano, one must admire the worth that has contributed to that success.

In 1839 the business was begun. About 1847 the first piano was made, and in 1853 they were awarded the gold medal at the New York Mechanics' Institute exhibit.

Up to the present time the record has been a grand one, one of constant increase in appreciation; of increased business.

The Hallet & Davis grand has been and is a noted concert instrument. Noted artists have played it, are playing it and will continue to use it.

Schools and colleges have testified to its merits; amateurs and the great public regard it as a favorite instrument.

The Hallet & Davis company are not relying upon their past great reputation for present business and success. They are alive to every improvement and modern device, and the Hallet & Davis piano today is the peer of any.

It will be heard of in 1894. The trade can rest assured of that. The people are more alive to its good qualities than ever before. More people have heard it and admired it in the past year than ever before.

The Hallet & Davis piano is going to have a boom.—The Presto, Feb. 10.

The great hall in the Saengerbund building has been transformed into a veritable flower garden for the Fair, beginning tomorrow night. 1-2t

Strike While the Iron is Hot.

In the coming municipal elections the people have an opportunity to wrest the controlling power from the hands of that class who have always been opposed and who always will be opposed to good government, because good government is opposed to their own selfish personal interests.

In this fight, which is now being waged, THE SENTINEL has taken its stand for good government, and we propose to remain there until we have won or lost, fighting, as we always have and always will, for that which is right—for the home, the fireside, the family and the best interests of the whole people.

We believe the people are with us in this fight. They have watched the past course of events in this city and seen how, time and time again, repeatedly and continuously, the laws have been set at naught and allowed to be broken without any attempt to check their violation, and we believe that every honest, thinking man is heartily sick and tired of this loose, lawless way in which things have been allowed to run—almost without a check.

Many of the saloonmen seem to think that they have a license, nay a right, to run their business to suit themselves and will brook no interference, and our executives, fearing their power, allow them to do so. Many of them pay no attention to the law against selling intoxicating liquors to minors, or to men in the habit of getting intoxicated, or after 11 o'clock, or on Sunday, but permit liquor to be sold to anybody and everybody who has the price to pay for it, running all day and all night and keeping wine rooms where young girls take their first step to ruin—yet the curb is not put on them, nor is any effort made to check them in their unquestioned violations of the laws.

They pay a license to run their business and, as we have repeatedly said, under the law, they have the right to continue it, but we are not asking anything unreasonable when we insist that, like all other citizens, they should be made to obey the law. They have the legal right to sell liquor all day, but they have not the legal right to sell it after 11 o'clock at night or on Sundays, or to minors, or to habitual drunkards. There are certain saloonkeepers in Fort Wayne who pay so little attention to obeying the law that they do not even take out a license and are today selling liquor without paying one penny into the county treasury for doing so. If one class is allowed to thus violate the law to the injury of the common good, what guarantee have we that other law breakers will not be allowed to do the same thing?

The time has come when there should be a reform in this regard, when this loose, lawless manner of doing business should be checked, and we believe that the citizens of Fort Wayne will, at the coming municipal election, rise up and demand it.

The only way to bring a different and better state of things about is to put a man into the mayor's office who will execute the laws—a man who has the courage to say to these saloon keepers that they must conduct their business within the bounds of the law and who will see to it that that order is obeyed. Such a man ought, and such a man can be elected mayor of the city of Fort Wayne.

If the democrats, at their primaries next Saturday, do not nominate that kind of a man for mayor they will be beaten just as certain as that the sun will set on the 1st day of May, next, for every democrat who loves his home and his family better than he does the saloon will refuse to vote for the nominee of his party. We love party success, but, God forbid, that it should be purchased at the price of putting a man into the mayor's office who will bend the law to suit the demands and wishes of the law breakers.

Good government cannot win at the coming primaries and at the election which follows if its friends sit idly down and be content to watch the result. They must work, work now and work until the polls are closed, standing hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder for law, for right and against that element in politics which seeks power only that they may be permitted to run their business without legal restraint.

The saloonkeepers and the brewers have their mayoralty candidate in the field. They are giving their time and their money to secure his nomination and they will contribute just as generously to secure his election. If the friends of good government wish to meet them and defeat them in this battle where ballots count, they must be equally active, equally earnest, equally determined. They must work to win. Let them accept the alternative, enter the contest and go forth to do all they can for good government. Strike while the iron is hot, remembering that it is votes which count and win, and with every lover of the home and fireside doing his duty, victory will come.

An Epidemic of Bomb Throwing.

The pestiferous bomb throwers are getting in their work in various quarters of the world. Beginning with the outrage in the theater at Barcelona, in Spain, last autumn, the Messieurs Anarchists have managed to keep a good share of public attention attracted to themselves for the past six months. The affair at Barcelona itself was in revenge for the execution of the anarchist Pallas, who threw the bomb at General Martinez Campos. General Campos still lives and is the general now conducting matters for Spain in Morocco. Vaillant, in Paris, has expiated the crime of bomb throwing and murder. That, however, did not prevent Anarchist Pauwels from attempting to blow up the famous old church of the Madeleine, with all its congregation of worshipers. London did not escape the terror and alarm of threatened anarchistic demonstrations, but thus far nothing of any consequence has been blown up.

In Rome it was different. The ceremonies lately at the funeral of Signor Angeli, who died from wounds received at the explosion in the Piazza di Citorio, were imposing enough. Baron Sonnino, finance minister, himself walked in the funeral procession. It was enough to tempt the miscreant who threw the first bomb to try it again. There was a chance of killing so many at once, and that is what the dynamiters most desire to do, according to their own profession.

In Russian cities there are constant dynamite scares. In Brussels they are also frequent, while Berlin occasionally is stirred into a state of alarm from the same cause.

In the United States, except for the case of the lamentable Haymarket affair in Chicago and the explosion in Russell Sage's office about a year ago, we have escaped serious injury and disturbance from bomb throwing. It has been said that as soon as the anarchists come to America they get so busy trying to become rich that they lose interest in killing people as a recreation. Recent developments, however, look as if this saying were becoming an empty boast. In West Virginia a few weeks ago a janitor found under a large hall in which a hundred people had been dancing the night before four bombs attached to a half burned fuse. If the fuse had burned on instead of dying out, the hall, with its dancers, would have been lifted from its foundations.

But it is in New York, where the most foreigners are, that the outcroppings of the bomb hurling spirit are chiefly visible. One bomb was thrown recently that wrecked a beer saloon, but fortunately did not kill any one. A man was arrested in Harlem the same day who had in his possession dynamite bombs enough to blow up a whole block. He declared when captured that the package had been given him to carry, and he did not know what was in it. But it made the inhabitants of that part of the big city feel queer for a week.

Of course it is easy for a man to say when the explosive is found in his possession that it was meant for blasting purposes. But these are times when suspected dynamiters will bear close watching in every part of the Union.

A new bureau has been created in the department of agriculture. It is a division, the duty of whose superintendent and his assistants shall be to study the climatic conditions of heat and moisture under the ground and their relation to crop distribution. The expectation is that valuable information will be obtained as to how different soils distribute moisture to plants. Some soils hold the water back and distribute it slowly, while others give out all they contain and dry up. It will be of advantage to farmers to know what crops can be grown best on each of these different kinds of earth. By understanding the method in which different soils give out their moisture it has already been possible to increase the value of lands in certain sections many fold, notably the portions of Maryland which have of recent years been utilized for truck farming.

It was with a display of characteristic Labouchereian eloquence that the little editor of London Truth got in his threatened amendment on the abolishment of the house of lords. It must be particularly trying to the British government after the cabinet and heads have prepared an elaborate address to be read on the assembling of parliament—just as if it came from her majesty, when everybody knows it did not—to have a member of the house of commons arise and move a very audacious amendment to the address and have it carried. Labouchere's addition to the commons' reply to the queen's speech declared that the power now enjoyed by persons not elected to parliament by the usual process of franchise to prevent the passage of bills should cease. "I, for one," says Labby, "am tired of pouring sound Radical liquor into a vat with a bung like Lord Salisbury ready to let it all out."

New York has a new grudge at Chicago. The distributing point for Indian supplies, which time out of mind has been New York city, has been changed by order of Secretary Smith of the interior department to Chicago. The New York warehouse has been abolished, and henceforth Indian supplies will be annually contracted for and delivered at Chicago.

READ ABOUT THIS LADY

And the Confidential Secret That She Cheerfully Imparts.

IT IS VERY INTERESTING.

There Are Many Persons Who Can Appreciate Her Condition Because They Have Been so Themselves.

On a recent Sunday afternoon the writer gave interested attention to the narration which follows. It is here reproduced almost exactly in the words of the lady from whose lips it fell—Mrs. S. B. Cook, of 250 Tompkins avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Her husband, Mr. S. B. Cook, has for many years held a responsible position in the Registered Letter Department of the New York Postoffice.

We three sat at the front windows of their home overlooking the park, as Mrs. Cook gave this leaflet out of her life, one of her little children nestling against her knee.

"My husband and I have been married," said the lady, "almost nine years. Before my marriage I was often tired, weak, exhausted, and my strength seemed to be passing from me. I was then troubled a great deal with indigestion and dyspepsia, and sometime since. I would be well two or three months and sick two or three months, off and on. That was the history of several years—sleeping badly and suffering. I could not eat any solid food. I lived on boiled milk, taken hot, right off the stove. That was my diet, and I got very tired of it; but I was afraid to touch anything else.

"Now to get back to the year 1893, last year, was a long and as done for me. As the warm weather came on I hoped to get better, but did not. The opening buds on the trees out there in the park found me as weak, low and miserable as I had been in the winter. I was losing flesh and strength, slowly but surely, all the time. My nerves were feeble and shaken so that my sleep was habitually bad.

"At last, by the advice of friends I went to Peekskill where I remained for some time, but my friends saw I was growing thinner, and expressed the opinion to one another that I was in a decline.

"The doctor suggested that I take cod liver oil, but I told him I couldn't bear the looks or the taste of it, either in its natural state or as an emulsion. He looked grave at this but said no more about it. So I lay there and lingered and sank; that is all there is to say of the result of my trip to the country."

"Every time I went up to visit my wife," said Mr. Cook, "I could see she was much thinner and more feeble than before, although she didn't like to admit it."

"Well," continued the lady, "I felt that if it were physically possible I must get home, and so, on the 3d of November, they wrapped me up and brought me home, what was left of me, and what there was of me weighed just 98 pounds, 37 pounds less than I weighed in my girlhood. Here I could do nothing, eat nothing, only wait for what might happen. I had tried doctors and drugs—often useful to others—but of no use to me.

"On the next day after my return my husband brought me a bottle of pre-digested food, and said a friend of his recommended it and hoped I would try it. I tasted it and it tasted good—nothing like cod liver oil. I began taking it according to the directions without feeling the least confidence in it or indulging any hope from it. But it did have a good effect, and that quickly. It gave me an appetite.

"I could eat the old kinds of food and they didn't distress me. Then I began to get some strength. At the end of a week, to my surprise and delight, I found I had gained two pounds. At the end of the second week, two more. And so on, gaining two pounds every week.

"It is eight weeks now, and I weigh 114 pounds, just sixteen pounds more than when I came home. I can eat anything, have no pain, no cough, no headache, can run upstairs like a girl, and I know you will believe me when I say it is all due to Paskola."

"And you think the pre-digested food Paskola did all this for you, Mrs. Cook?"

"Certainly; if it didn't, what did? I never felt so well, and like living, in ten years as I do now."

"It isn't my wife's increase in weight alone," remarked Mr. Cook, "but look at her! her strength! her enjoyment of herself! her bright spirits! She had none of these things till Paskola gave them to her. If it can do as much for other people, through her statement being published, why it ought to be published."

"What my husband says, I say," added Mrs. Cook; "anything less would be ingratitude on my part and culpable indifference to the sufferings of others."

Has this case any lesson for you? Are you thin? Are you famishing for food which the palate refuses and the stomach cannot digest? Are you pale from want of red blood? Are you chilly because you have no flesh to feed the vital fire? Are you weak because your food is not assimilated? Are you slowly sinking like a scuttled ship? Millions are. Abandon the use of drugs and medicines, and test the successful modern scientific treatment. Paskola is a food, and enables the system to use all other food. It arrests emaciation, re-establishes nutrition, fills up the hollow cheeks, and out of weakness develops power.

A pamphlet giving full particulars respecting Paskola will be sent on application to the Pre-Digested Food Co., 30 Reade St., N. Y. City.

FIELD OF SCIENCE.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE INDUSTRIAL WORLD.

Evolution of Photography—Change of Method in Applying Power to Locomotive Driving Wheels—A Tidal Indicator in New York Harbor.

Illusive Photography.

We illustrate some most amusing examples of illusive photography, which are reproduced from some photographs sent us by Frank A. Gilmore of Auburn, R. I., says the Scientific American. Mr. Gilmore does not feel satisfied with representing the human form divine in a single role, he wishes to show on one plate the same person the giver and recipient of a "tip," or both on the offense and defense in a "bare knuckle" fight. If a person is to be photographed in the street, he is given himself for company. Our illustration tells its own story. The pedestrian is in the company of his best friend, himself. The photograph from which this photo was reproduced is of excellent quality and most interesting.

The method of producing them is very simple. A black-lined box is fitted to the front of a kodak, or any form of camera. The front of the box is closed by two doors. On opening one door a picture may be taken on one side of the plate; on closing this door and opening the other, the other half of the plate is ready for exposure.

The subject poses in one position and is photographed with one door open, care being taken to bring the figure within the proper area of the negative. The finder enables this detail to be attended to. Then the door is closed, the other is opened and the second exposure for the other half of the plate is made with the subject in the other position. It is not necessary to touch the plate holder between the exposures. The cover is withdrawn, the one door is opened and the shutter is sprung. The doors are then changed and the shutter is sprung a second time. Time exposures are rather risky, as involving danger of shaking.

These views were taken with an ordinary four by five inch kodak, and the box was an ordinary cigar box cut down to fit, and blackened inside.

Test for Wintergreen Oil.

The following is an excellent test for oil of wintergreen, or birch, that is suspected of being mixed with the synthetic oil.

The theory is that while synthetic oil wintergreen is almost the same chemically as true oil, yet it being an alcoholic product it is impossible to entirely remove traces of alcohol; hence, if a small particle of red aniline soluble in alcohol be dropped into a vial of the synthetic oil it will immediately show a disposition to dissolve, which is not the case with true wintergreen. Practically this is found to be the case. In three to five minutes time, by agitating vials of both oils with aniline in them, it will be noticed that the artificial product readily dissolves the aniline, whereas the other will hardly have any perceptible effect on it. After the lapse of fifteen minutes to half an hour both will be discolored, but the artificial will have a purplish tint, while the natural oil will be more of a cherry color, and in proportion as the two are mixed, so will be the time and extent of coloration.

This is a delicate test, fit only for use by experts, for which reason we have not hitherto published it, as by it a careless user would probably reject all the oil he purchased, whether pure or otherwise. Before adopting it for use it will be well to make several experiments in order to get a correct idea of the length of time required for the action of pure oil wintergreen on the aniline, in comparison with the artificial or known mixtures of the two.

Tidal Indicator, New York Harbor.

Nearly all foreign trade vessels that enter the port of New York pass through what is termed "the Narrows," which is a contraction of the channelway formed by the bluffs of Staten Island on the one hand and Long Island on the other or easterly side.

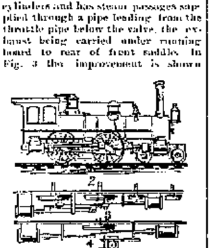
For the convenience of mariners the government has lately erected upon the pier at Fort Hamilton a tidal indicator, to show, for the benefit of vessels passing in or out of the harbor, the condition of the tide. The arrow pointing downward shows that the tide is ebbing, while the mark under the figured dial indicates that it is almost dead low water and the flood will soon begin.

Soap Suds for Calming Waves.

The remarkable action of oil upon waves is well known. This phenomenon led the officers of the steamship Scandia of Hamburg to make an experiment upon the same principle that was very successful and that appears to us worthy of mention. During its last trip to the United States, the vessel, while in midocean, was attacked by a very heavy storm. It then occurred to the officers to dissolve a large quantity of soap in tubs of water. Having thus obtained several hundred gallons of soap suds in a very short time, they threw it overboard in front of the ship. The effect was almost instantaneous, and the vessel soon began to navigate without difficulty. Her officers at once addressed a long report to the Hydrographic Bureau of the United States, giving an account of their voyage, the storm, and the means that they employed to still the waves. They concluded by saying that although soap suds does not produce absolutely all the effects upon water that oil does, it at least suffices to break the force of waves in most cases. Besides, this method recommends itself to transportation companies careful of their interests. Soap suds is much cheaper than oil, and a relatively large quantity of soap can be carried without encroaching too much upon the space set apart for passengers and merchandise.—La Nature.

A Powerful Locomotive.

The improvement herewith represented consists in a change of method of applying power to driving wheels. Fig. 1 shows a standard American locomotive altered by application of the improved gear, and Fig. 2 is a plan view, by which it will be seen that power is applied to the same driving wheel from opposite directions, front and rear cylinders being connected by their rods to opposite ends of a double crank on the main driver. To preserve counterbalance and prevent pounding on the rear axle journals two side rods are used, the rear crank being of the same form as the main one. The engine deck forms the saddle for the rear cylinders and has steam passages supplied through a pipe leading from the throttle pipe below the valve, the exhaust being carried under running board to rear of front saddle. In Fig. 3 the improvement is shown with only one driving wheel. The standard form of valve motion is used, the forward valve rod extending back to rear valves. Its motion being reversed by the device shown in Fig. 4, contained in a covered box which also forms a guide for the rods. This arrangement is also adapted, without the side rods, to stationary engines, particularly those of high speed, where a heated journal would cause serious trouble, such as would be the case in an electric light or street car power engine. It is also adapted to English engines having a single pair of driving wheels. By thus applying the power from opposite directions it is designed to entirely eliminate pounding and friction in the axle journals, as well as to effect an entire freedom from the well-known "pound on the rail," for, as the rod leading to the forward cylinder will push or pound downward on the rail when its crank pin is on the lower quarter, the rod leading from the rear cylinder will be on the upper quarter, pushing upward with the same force as the forward rod has in its downward pressure.



New High-Speed Cruisers.

The British Admiralty have given out orders to the Naval Construction and Armaments Co., Barrow, and Messrs. James and George Thomson, Clydebank, Glasgow, for the construction of two high-speed cruisers for the British navy, to be named the Powerful and the Terrible respectively. These two cruisers are each to be about 500 feet long, and will therefore be the longest afloat. They will conform more to the type of Atlantic liners, and will have great coal endurance. They are to have an armored deck, which alone is to afford protection, except that the coal will be so arranged as to assist to this end. Speed is to be the first consideration, hence the great length. The principal novelty is the use of the water-tube boiler for the first time in a high-speed cruiser. It is not improbable that the boiler adopted will be the French Belleville type, although the details are not yet irrevocably determined. This boiler is the one which has been most extensively tried in vessels, but in Britain there is no experience of it. It is, however, being fitted to twenty-two cruisers or battleships ranging up to 14,000 indicated horse power in six Russian vessels; while the Messageries Maritimes has fitted it to seven vessels, in some of which it has been worked satisfactorily for ten years. It has been tried also in other navies, but not in any case in large cruisers, which are to attain a speed of 23 knots, as in the cases of the Powerful and Terrible.

It isn't "The Same As," and it isn't "as good as" no matter what any grocer may tell you about any imitation of Pearline. He makes more money on it, of course—but do you want to ruin your clothes for his profit. Some of the imitations of Pearline are sold at a lower price, naturally. They ought to be cheaper, for they're not as good. Some of them are dangerous, and would be dear at any price. None of them is equal to Pearline, the original washing compound, which saves more work in washing and cleaning than anything else that doesn't do harm. Pearline is never peddled, and it offers no prize packages. Every package is a prize in itself. Get it from some good grocer. 371 JAMES PYLE, New York.

They're More Wonderful Than He.

We offer to our subscribers the most beautiful art work ever published at a merely nominal cost. This is an entirely new work, every plate being made especially for it. It is called

"FAMOUS PAINTINGS OF THE WORLD."

It is a collection of PHOTOGRAPHIC REPRODUCTIONS OF GREAT MODERN MASTERPIECES. It contains specimens of the great paintings of all art-producing nations and includes ONE HUNDRED OF THE MOST NOTABLE PAINTINGS at the WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

It exemplifies the most ATTRACTIVE, INTERESTING, PURE and INSPIRING qualities of contemporaneous art. It contains a superb introduction by the greatest living novelist, GEN. LEW. WALLACE.

GEMS OF MODERN ART,

Reproduced by the perfected half-tone process, having the appearance of the most perfect photographs. So large a collection of photographs of paintings could not be purchased for less than $1,000, and yet these photographic reproductions are offered to the public at the insignificant price of TEN CENTS for each portfolio.

Every picture is described by the brightest and best of America's writers on art subjects. These descriptions are not technical or prolix, but bright and interesting.

The materials for this publication have been gathered out of the most Famous Galleries and finest Private Collections in the Old World and the New.

All eminent artists are represented, but the minor artists and young aspirants for artistic honors—whose names are not yet household words have not been overlooked. The Committee of Selection have often chosen a meritorious and pleasing picture by a comparatively unknown artist in preference to an unattractive subject by a painter of prominence. This magnificent art work is in itself a Home Gallery of Famous Masterpieces.

Do not fail to secure the first portfolio at once. The first Portfolio contains sixteen reproductions of great paintings, and also the magnificent introduction by GENERAL LEW. WALLACE.

All the future portfolios will contain sixteen reproductions of MASTERPIECES OF MODERN ART.

How to Secure This Series: Clip three "Famous Paintings of the World" coupons from the third page of this paper and send them together with ten cents to the Portfolio Department of "The Sentinel" and the part called for will be sent to your address by mail.

The first three portfolios can be had by calling at the office.

The entire series consists of 20 parts, each part contains 16 photographic reproductions of great paintings of the world.

Address all mail to "The Sentinel" Portfolio Department, including no other business in portfolio orders.

AFFAIRS OF THE RAIL.

Mr. Archibald Takes a Position in the Wabash Offices.

The Electric Light Works Will be Closed For Repairs to the Engines —Personal Notices.

W. Henker, an employe of the Pittsburg shops, is sick and off duty.

Pittsburg engine No. 138 was turned out of the shops yesterday, having been thoroughly repaired.

Henry Rebling, boilermaker, and Sanford Smith, laborer, of the Wabash shop, were taking a rest yesterday.

James Dickey, of the shipping department of the Pittsburg iron machine room, is off duty on account of sickness.

In the telegraph columns of THE SENTINEL today will be found the particulars of the disastrous fire at Hobart, Ind.

Frank Benoy, foreman of the Bass boiler shop, made a trip to Hartford City yesterday in the interest of the firm.

Workmen are engaged in putting in a sprinkler in the lawn south of the Pittsburg superintendent's office building on Clinton street.

D. F. Crawford, assistant master mechanic of the Pittsburg, returned from Pennsylvania last night. He saw Coxey's army while east.

Samuel Kuffner, conductor on the Pittsburg road, is the proud father of a bright little girl baby. The parents reside on South Hanna street.

The Nickel Plate has closed all its outside ticket offices except those at Buffalo and Chicago. This move is made in the interest of economy.

The contract to furnish bridges and trestles for the extension of the Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling was awarded Saturday to P. A. Kearns, of Chicago.

J. T. Brooks, second vice president of the Pennsylvania company, who has been in Cuba for a month, resting, returned Sunday to his headquarters at Pittsburg.

Al. Kinnaird was a caller at the Pittsburg shops this morning. His right hand is still lame, but otherwise Mr. Kinnaird says he is all right. He is a machinist.

Enoch Cox, storekeeper at the Pittsburg shops, started on his annual tour of the western division of the road this morning. He will visit all towns where car inspectors are situated.

The machine shop and other rooms at the electric light works, which depend upon the large engine for power will be closed Wednesday and Thursday to allow some repairs to the engine.

The car works at Terre Haute are now doing little except repair work, but the burned buildings have been rebuilt, and the company is in better shape to build cars than before the fire.

Larry Markey, formerly baggagemaster at the Wabash depot, and his wife sailed from New York today for Europe. They expect to visit Ireland some months before their return home.

W. A. Donlon, who has been very ill for sometime, was able to walk down to Dr. Barnfield's office, at the Pittsburg depot building yesterday. Mr. Donlon is a machinist employed in the Pittsburg shops.

C. H. Bromley, traveling freight agent of the Red Line, with headquarters at Toledo, and W. J. Keller, who represents the Lake Shore in a similar capacity, also of Toledo, are in Fort Wayne today.

The two confidence men who robbed Henry Richley, of Lake Geneva, Wis., of $5 in cash and a gold watch on the Nickel Plate train last Friday, were arrested at McComb on Saturday and fined. It cost them $60 each.

The executive board of the Vandalia-Pennsylvania will hold its quarterly meeting at Terre Haute on April 11. Colonel Joseph Hill will continue as general superintendent until that date, when, it is officially stated, his successor will be announced.

A. E. Archibald has assumed the duties of bill clerk in Agent C. H. Newton's office at the Wabash, vice Ed Woodworth, who has been transferred to New Haven. Two years ago Mr. Archibald was a clerk in Master Mechanic F. W. Morse's office.

The Pennsylvania lines have subscribed $5,000 towards the expenses of the Grand Army encampment at Pittsburg. A statement in THE SENTINEL last Saturday put the amount at $1,000. The Baltimore and Ohio company contributes $2,500 for the same purpose.

The old projected road, known as the Louisville, Cincinnati and Dayton, is no more. The charter was called up last week before Judge Downey at Vevay, Ind., and as the defense made no reply as to why the charter should not be forfeited Judge Downey revoked the charter.

The Santa Fe has made a big cut in freight rates from Kansas and other Missouri river points to Texas on some of the leading commodities. The rate on flour and other grain products was reduced from thirty-seven to twenty five cents per hundred; from thirty to twenty cents on wheat; from thirty-two to eighteen cents on oats, and from twenty-seven to fifteen cents on corn, hay and straw. The new rates, which will be effective on the fifth, will doubtless be met by the other lines, and will probably result in a general demoralization of the Texas rates.

Indianapolis carpenters, at a meeting Sunday evening, at which over 700 were present, decided that the rules which governed their work last year would be adopted for the year 1894. These rules provide that the men shall be paid thirty cents per hour and shall work only eight hours per day.

The Wabash carried many old soldiers to Lafayette today to attend the state encampment. Among the Fort Wayne people who went to Lafayette today are: C. S. Hilton, D. N. Foster, John Verdermark, M. R. Johnson, Chris Newcomer, I. N. Medaker, James Liggett, Henry McMackin and John Soliday.

A. K. Bromley, of Jackson, Mich., was in the city last evening, the guest of Charles P. Porter, the rate clerk at the Wabash freight office. Mr. Bromley was at one time bill clerk in the office of Agent E. S. Philley, of the Lake Shore, but resigned a year ago to go into the boot and shoe business at Jackson.

The Indianapolis Journal says: "What the early official changes on the Southwestern system of the Pennsylvania lines are to be in the near future is a matter of much speculation. John F. Miller, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Southwestern system, was in Pittsburg on Saturday, accompanied by his son Harry Miller, now superintendent of the Louisville division of the Pennsylvania lines, an occurrence which is thought to have some significance."

A SPRING STORY.

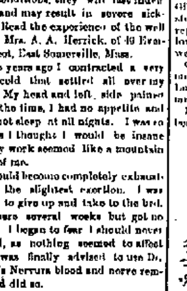
A Few Things You Ought Surely to Do at This Season.

In the spring we feel tired, languid and debilitated. The change from cold to warm weather causes a depression of the vital forces resulting in an inactive state of the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys. Headache is common, and the blood undergoes changes which greatly debilitate the system.

The complexion is apt to be sallow, and dark circles gather under the eyes. If something is not done to overcome these conditions, they will last indefinitely and may result in severe sickness. Read the experience of the well known Mrs. A. A. Herrick, of 40 Everett street, East Somerville, Mass.

"Two years ago I contracted a very severe cold that settled all over my body. My head and left side pained me all the time, I had no appetite and could not sleep at all nights. I was so nervous I thought I would be insane and any work seemed like a mountain ahead of me.

"I would become completely exhausted on the slightest exertion. I was obliged to give up and take to the bed. I lay there several weeks but got no better. I began to fear I should never get well, as nothing seemed to affect me. I was finally advised to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and did so.



MRS. A. A. HERRICK.

"It seemed to quiet me just as soon as I began using it. Before a week I could rest and sleep through the night and could feel my strength coming back.

"When I begun the second bottle I could see I had improved very much. I continued taking it and in a few months no one would know I had been sick with severe nervous prostration.

"It also cured me of female troubles which I had been a great sufferer from. It is a wonderful medicine and I cannot say enough in praise of it. I advise any person afflicted with any of these complaints to use it, and I am positive they will get well."

If you want to be perfectly strong and healthy the best possible thing to do is to take this great curer and strengthener. You can be cured quicker in the spring than at any other season. You must take a spring medicine, everyone knows that, and Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best and most certain because it always cures.

It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City. He is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases and can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

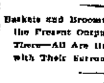
THE GIBSON COMMUNE

NEW CO-OPERATIVE INDUSTRY WORKS IN MICHIGAN.

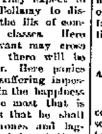
Baskets and Brooms Form the Limit of the Present Output—No Hard Times There—All Are Happy and Contented with Their Surroundings.



THE QUAINT town of Gibsonville, Mich., three miles from Flint, is the home of the newest organized community whose members hope to attain the acme of earthly happiness on the co-operative plan. They are very confident that they are headed in the right direction. They expect to realize the dreams of Bellamy to discover the panacea for the ills of complaining industrial classes. Here neither poverty nor want may cross the threshold. Here there will be neither rich nor poor. Here panics will be unknown and suffering impossible. All will share in the happiness of life equally and the most that is expected of any man is that he shall pitch in and work. Drones and laggards will not be tolerated, and, if admitted as members, will be summarily expelled as enemies of the well-being of the community.

Gibsonville will immortalize the name of the original Gibson, the late Capt. Gibson, who took up several hundred acres of government land, and on it settled down to the life of a pioneer years before the screech of the iron horse was heard between Saginaw and Detroit.

A few years ago Capt. Gibson died, leaving a fine estate to his large family of children, who are now devoting the property to the interests of a communal society. G. W. Gibson, the president and promoter of the community, when touring in California a few years ago, became interested in the celebrated Kaweah community at the foot of the mountains in Tulare county, near Visalia. He invested in the concern and studied its workings.

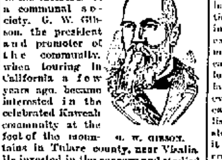


G. W. GIBSON.

Afterward, with Alexander Longley, the altruist editor, he returned to Michigan and succeeded in interesting the rest of the heirs to his father's estate in the communal idea. They agreed th[illegible] better location for the co[illegible]nity could be found than on the l[illegible] of the late Capt. Gibson. So the Gibsons organized a stock company, with a capital stock representing real estate placed at the lowest possible figure. The eight heirs were the shareholders.

Gibson desired to run the community on a purely co-operative basis, but Longley, being an out-and-out communist, did not join the enterprise.

It was decided to place the membership at first at 211, and the shares at $10 each. Each member, in order to create an interest in the financial part of the community, should be required to purchase ten shares each. No member can purchase more than ten shares.



THE OLD INN.

The purpose of the community, as stated in its by-laws, is to conduct the business of agriculture, manufacturing and merchandising for the mutual benefit of all its members, and to allow equal rights and privileges to all, both men and women; to conduct its business in accordance with instructions of a majority vote; to so conduct its business that each, according to his or her ability, can be employed at all times in some productive industry, thereby being able to furnish to all a good home, with comforts and pleasant surroundings; to abolish want or the anticipations of want.

Every member is expected to devote his or her entire efforts, time and property for the benefit of all the members, and to receive according to their needs, in health and sickness, in youth and age, governed by the community's ability to furnish.

The community makes no interference with the marriage or family relations of its members, nor with their religious, political or other opinions. All men and women are to be placed on an equal footing socially, in business life and in all matters pertaining to the government of the community. Children will be clothed and educated until they are 18 years old, when they may join the community.

A. S. GIBSON.

A reporter recently visited Gibsonville. No more picturesque place could be imagined than the spot selected for the home of the new society. The buildings are substantial enough to serve all purposes at the start, but will be replaced by larger and more expensive ones as the community becomes older. The old inn, which had sheltered the travelers along that thoroughfare for many years, was remodeled and is now occupied by the first members. The organization was effected in November last, and since that time fifty other families have joined the colony, and there are more to follow. The population numbers 130 and there are forty houses.

S. S. Gibson, secretary of the association, showed the reporter through the various departments and explained the workings of the new organization. In the basket factory a number of workmen were engaged in making lunch baskets, which were of first-class workmanship. A broom factory is also in operation, a laundry is being built; also a creamery. The community now has 200 cows and in the spring the creamery business will be started on a large scale. Farming and market gardening will also be carried on extensively. Those that have thus far joined the organization are thrifty, tidy, go-ahead people.

TAXES IN NEW ZEALAND.

A Place Where Improvements Up to $15,000 Escape Taxation.

John D. Connelly, United States consul at Auckland, New Zealand, has sent to the department of state an interesting report on the results of the new system of taxation practiced in that country and which is similar to the single land tax so much discussed in the United States. The consul begins with the declaration that in the matter of taxation laws New Zealand excels, as compared with the other Australian colonies, and, perhaps, with many older countries. The consul says:

"In a very short time the incidence of taxation has been almost entirely changed—always a most hazardous undertaking, because of its tendency to disturb existing values and disarrange business enterprises. Reforms have been introduced which revolutionize the old system without affecting, at least to any appreciable extent, existing interests. The most determined opposition to the 'new taxation' came from the moneyed institutions, loan companies and the owners of vast landed estates. It was found, however, as soon as the new system became law and was thoroughly established and fully understood that, instead of involving the colony in ruin, it had exactly the contrary effect. The credit of the colony in London increased to an unprecedented degree. New Zealand's credit is better to-day in the London money market than is that of any other colony in Australia."

The report assumes to show that the purpose of the government has been to relieve the "weaklings" from the burden of taxation and place it on the shoulders of those better able to bear it. The effort, says the consul, has succeeded and it has been appreciated and the government rewarded by the largest majority known in recent years. The new scheme of taxation, briefly stated by Consul Connelly, is:

First, a graduated land tax. The property tax was repealed in 1891, having proved to be a grievous burden. All improvements on land up to $15,000 were exempt, all above were taxed. The deduction of mortgages and of improvements to this amount rendered very many owners of land exempt from land tax. In addition to the ordinary land tax a graduated tax is levied and for this all improvements are deducted, but an owner is not allowed to make any deductions for mortgages held against him, and he has not to include in his return any mortgage held by him. This tax is only laid upon lands exceeding in value $25,000, less improvements, and ranges from ½ pence to 2 pence per pound sterling.

Absentee landlords are taxed 50 per cent in addition and this is considered justifiable, as there are many large owners living in England and drawing large incomes from the colony without recompense. There is also an income tax in which there are many exemptions. For instance, all incomes from mortgages and rents from land or produce of land derived by the owner or occupier are exempt. The result is that only a small proportion of the people pay this tax, which though conceded to be just is regarded with aversion, owing to its inquisitorial character. Close scrutiny of the lists has been repaid by many additions.

The graduated tax on land values over $25,000 was intended to compel possessors of large estates or speculative holders to subdivide and offer the land for settlement. The consul says it is having the desired effect and many of the immense estates are being offered to the government at their tax values, while others are being cut up in farms and offered at auction.

Steamer Disabled.

FAYAL, Azore Islands, April 3.—The North German Lloyd steamship Ems, Captain Reimkasten, from Bremen March 17th, and Southampton March 18th, for New York, now several days overdue at the latter port, was towed in here today by the British oil tank steamer Wild Flower, Captain Livingstone, from Wilmington, Del., on March 19th, for Blaye, France. The Ems has her propeller frame broken. The Wild Flower is owned by Alfred Stuart & Co., and hails from London. She is of 1,715 tons register.

PIONEERS OF TWO STATES.

Arrangements to Hold a Mass Meeting of Indiana and Ohio Residents.

PORTLAND, Ind., April 3.—Arrangements have been perfected to hold a grand mass meeting of the pioneers of Ohio and Indiana some time next month. The place has not been selected, but Fort Recovery, Ohio, eleven miles east of here, is favored because of its historic relations. It was there that St. Clair's army was massacred in 1791 and General Wayne defeated the Indians three years later.

How can pictures in black and white give an adequate idea of this greatest of modern undertakings?

PICTURESQUE WORLD'S FAIR, the latest and grandest of World's Fair reproductions, is the ONLY series that appears in natural colors, each of its 256 pictures being reproductions of

Water Colored Photographs,

By famous artists, and each one being worthy of a frame. It is also the only work which is indorsed by Director General Geo. R. Davis, and the labor and expense of its production are so great successful imitation is out of the question. All the resources of art and the aid of all modern improvements in printing, in portraiture and in engraving, have been summoned, and the work is what might have been expected from expenditure on such a grand scale. It is so remarkable that the Director General gave promptly to "Picturesque World's Fair" his enthusiastic indorsement and approval. Who better than he should know when at last the Columbian exposition has been rightly pictured, who better than the man who was at the head, whose enterprise and energy afforded so much of the grand impetus of the undertaking, whose whole heart was in the enterprise and who knows its every feature as a father does his child?

FOUR PERSONS BURNED.

Horrible Accident at Calumet, on the Nickel Plate.

Section Foreman Edward Price's House Burned and Himself and Three Children Perish.

HAMMOND, Ind., April 3.—A fire in which three children, aged two, six and twelve years, lost their lives, occurred in Calumet, a small station on the Nickel Plate, four miles south of here today.

The victims were children of Edward Price, section foreman on the road. The fire started in the front room and in a short time the entire two stories of the building were a mass of flames.

When the fire broke out there were nine other persons in the house. Mrs. Price escaped with her infant and was followed by her husband who, when he saw that the children were in the burning building, rushed into the flames and was fearfully burned on the face and body.

He did not reach the children, who were asleep on the first floor. On the second floor were three section hands and a twelve year old boy, but in their haste to escape the men forgot about the boy and the latter was burned to death.

The woman is frantic with grief. The cause of the fire is unknown. The doctors say that Price will die. The charred remains of the three children were found under the debris and taken to Wanatah for burial.

The house was owned by the railway company and was situated in an isolated place with not another house within two miles.

Summit City, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., Visits New Haven.

Father Delaney Branch of the C. K. of A. Organized—Phoenix Lodge Rents a New Hall.

Summit City Division, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., had great sport last Thursday evening when they went to New Haven in one of Chris Closer's big hacks to visit Maumee lodge No. 351. The "boys" left Fort Wayne at about 7 o'clock and arrived in New Haven an hour later. It was indeed a jolly party and they made the country fairly ring with songs and laughter as the four horses hitched to their hack went speeding along over the country roads.

The merry party was made up of the following: Capt. J. V. Reul, Col. Graves, Quarter Master Sergeant Chas Gross, Second Lieutenant Bostman, Martin Comincavish, George Siebold, sr., George Siebold, jr., William Barr, Joe Zilaman, William Dudolph, J. W. Young, Thomas Beale, J. T. Connolly and Messrs. Fleckinger, Rayhouser and others. The New Haven lodge was prepared to meet the visitors and it was a royal welcome they gave them. U. R. K. of P., was given a genuine "boom" and Summit City division did not come home empty handed, as four of the New Haven brothers signed application blanks, namely Druggist Cutter, Dr. Noll and Messrs. Adams and Gorrell, the latter the well known publisher of the "News" of that town. Several others caught the fever and will soon become members of Summit City lodge. Brother Bauman will also come into the ranks, sure.

During the evening addresses were made by members of Maumee lodge and Captain Reul, Colonel Graves and other members of Summit City division. The occasion was a regular "love feast" and the good fellowship which prevailed would have put enthusiasm into a dozen sleepy lodge meetings of some other orders. About the only event to mar the evening's pleasure was the misfortune which befel Brother Connelly. Naturally vivacious, he could not wait until the hack stopped to get out, and made a spring which landed him in the center of a big mud puddle.

It was past 12 o'clock when the Knights returned to this city and they will not soon forget the sport. After they reached here they went to Connolly's restaurant and partook of such light refreshments as hard boiled eggs, liver pads (sandwiches) and other well-known indigestibles.

On the 13th inst. Summit City division will take in their new members and look for an increase of all the way from ten to fifteen members. All Sir Knights of good standing are invited to be present. Under the able command of Captain Reul, Summit City division is enjoying the greatest boom in its history.

FATHER DELANEY BRANCH, C. K. OF A.

The new branch of the C. K. of A., which has been so successfully worked up in this city, was last night organized at St. Patrick's school house. The organization will be called the Father Delaney branch, 715, Catholic Knights of America. The officers elected were, Spiritual adviser, Father Delaney; president, Daniel Gardon; vice president, L. J. Feist; recording secretary, Thos. Gidden; financial secretary, Henry Zurbach; treasurer, Henry Schele, sergeant-at-arms, James Ryan, sentinel, James W. Wolf; trustees, Frank Mungovan, three years; J. V. O'Ryan, two years; J. Carl, one year.

Father Delaney branch goes into the national organization with the largest number of charter members of any branch of the Catholic Knights of America in the United States. On Tuesday evening of next week Supreme Treasurer C. J. Kerchner, of Toledo, and Father Campion, of Logansport, state president, will be in the city to install the new officers.

RENT A HALL.

Col. D. N. Foster last evening closed a ten year lease with Phoenix lodge, No. 101, K. of P., for the third story of the coming Aldine building. The lodge sketched the plans for the hall to suit itself. The hall proper is to be 40x60 feet in size, but there will be social rooms and other rooms for the appurtenances of the lodge. The size of the building is to be 60x72 feet. Three or four lodges are negotiating for the second floor. The first floor will be built for stores. Phoenix lodge is a very large lodge. It will have elegant and roomy quarters in the new Aldine building, which will be finished for lodge use in first-class style.

LODGE ITEMS.

Three names were added to the roll of membership of Summit City lodge, Degree of Honor, No. 2, A. O. U. W., at their last meeting and several applications were received. At the meeting this evening several candidates will be initiated. An interesting program has also been arranged.

Initiatory work was the main feature of the meeting of Summit City lodge, No. 36, A. O. U. W., at their last meeting. Applications were also received. As is the case at all the meetings of this prosperous lodge several candidates will present themselves for initiation next Thursday evening.

The following is the program of the seventy-fifth anniversary of I. O. O. F., in the United States, to be held in Fort Wayne hall, No. 14, April 26, 7:30 p. m.:

HEROIC LITTLE GIRL.

Unable to Save Her Sister She Let One Foot Be Cut Off.

One Gets Her Foot Fastened in a Frog and in the Effort to Release Her Both are Injured.

GUTHRIE, Ind., April 3.—While two little daughters of farmer Collier, living two miles from town, were crossing the railroad on the way to school, today, one of them caught her foot in the frog at the switch. The other went to her assistance, but before she could extricate the foot a train approached around a curve. With a self sacrificing heroism not to be expected in one of her age, the little girl bravely stood beside her helpless sister, suffering the loss of one foot, while the other little one had both legs crushed by the wheels. She will die. The little heroine may recover.

CLAUSMEIER'S CAPTURE.

The Arrest of Charles James for Forgery.

He Attempts to Pass a Worthless Check at Hinton's—Held Over to Court.

Shortly after dinner today a well dressed stranger entered the restaurant of John C. Hinton and attempted to pass a check for $15, purporting to have been drawn by George B. Stemen, but which was a forgery. The fellow also had a note which he wanted to sell. Mr. Hinton saw that the man was a sharper and telephoned the sheriff.

Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod immediately responded. The forger was put under arrest and taken before Justice Ryan, who bound him over to court on the charge of forgery. His name is not known, but it is supposed to be Charles James. He does not live in this city.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Fireman Rescues Thomas Gillen From a Frightful Fall.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Thomas Gillen, a window washer, narrowly escaped a frightful fall of one hundred feet from a ledge of the Board of Trade building today, and was rescued by a fireman in the nick of time. Gillen had gone out of a window to the ledge and while at work some one locked the casement. Becoming dizzy the man clung to the wall and screamed frantically for help. The streets were soon blocked by an immense crowd which cheered loudly as Truckman Sullivan, of the fire department, climbed a long ladder and with the aid of another seized and rescued Gillen just as he was overcome by fright and lost his balance.

COACHER PHIL KING.

Cleverest Football Player in the United States.

The fact that Phil King has been engaged as chief coach for the entire football season next fall has been the source of much rejoicing in the Princeton club recently.

His acceptance of this position practically marks the dawning of a new era in Princeton football. The entire college is rejoiced that at last the authorities have not only recognized the crying need of more steady coaching but have succeeded in securing such an ideal helper as King, who will give his whole time to putting the Tigers into championship form and placing Princeton still further in the van. For years Princeton's reverses have been ascribed to one and another cause, till finally, the category being exhausted, those lovers of Princeton who believed that old Nassau was the home of athletics were beginning to lose their faith in the face of so much contradicting sight.

Of these reputed causes of the failures in athletics was the lack of coaching. As 1889 was the last year in which Princeton had won a football championship, coaches were drawn almost entirely from the ranks the '89 eleven. These players were all star guards, tackles and backs in their day, but few if any of them had kept pace with the development of the game in the last few years.

No one would say that a great amount of good was not done for the Princeton teams by those same men. The truth is they were invaluable, but the idea of players of the old school teaching the new system was wrong. Although some excellent coaching was done by Alex. Moffat, Jesse Riggs, Walter Cash and Hector Cowan, each stayed only a short time, and the unfinished work was continued by coaches who did not know what had been done before their arrival, and who had ideas sometimes diametrically opposed to their predecessors.

BRET HARTE'S DAUGHTER.

Miss Jessamy Harte Has Some Individual Claims to Distinction.

MISS JESSAMY HARTE.

A beautiful and accomplished young woman is Miss Jessamy Harte, Bret Harte's oldest daughter. For her beauty it is but necessary to say that she has a dainty pink and white complexion, with blue eyes set under heavy straight black brows. Her mouth is perhaps the prettiest feature of her face—a regular Cupid's bow, painted with the red of rosebuds. Her neck and arms are finely molded, and she is tall and graceful and carries herself well.

Miss Harte has a bright future as an artist before her if she will but apply herself steadfastly to developing the exceptional talents with which nature has endowed her. She is said not to be overfond of the routine of study, but she has already done some notably good work, in which competent critics see the promise of much that is better. About a year ago her illustrations of "Camp Life in the Adirondacks" attracted attention, and since then she has rapidly risen into prominence. Her work last winter consisted chiefly of initial letters and head and tail pieces for illustrated weeklies and magazines, and she also designed several covers for The Outlook, the new series of The Christian Union.

Miss Harte has some notion of going over to Paris for a year's study. At present the family resides in New Jersey, at Plainfield, where Mr. Harte's sister has a handsome old fashioned house, but within a few weeks they expect to join Mr. Harte in London and will probably make their permanent home in England, where Mr. Harte has resided for a number of years, his literary interests being chiefly centered there.

PERPETUAL MOTION AGAIN.

This Time a Cosmopolitan of San Francisco Claims to Have Solved the Problem.

Antonio de la Torre is a little, stout built mechanical engineer of Cuban birth and Italian parentage who resides at present in San Francisco, but has at various periods in his half century of existence lived in nearly every country on the globe. Antonio is certainly a great traveler. If he isn't a fakir, he is also—or will be—a great man, for Antonio claims to have solved one of the problems of the ages—to have discovered perpetual motion, or rather to have invented and constructed a machine which produces perpetual motion.

He has exhibited a working model of his invention to several persons of competent judgment under circumstances that seemed to preclude the possibility of deception, and they have all and severally pronounced it a success and marveled at its wonderful simplicity. It is an adaptation of the revolving circle and rolling balls idea that has haunted the minds of seekers after perpetual motion for ages, but it apparently overcomes the difficulties of friction and gravitation in a manner never before dreamed of.

To the ordinary observer Antonio's motor looks like a flat brass wheel with a cogged surface revolving laterally in a little wooden tub. In the center is an upright shaft about a foot in height, which is connected with the brass wheel by light metal supports. Half way up the shaft is fixed a little circular platform, from the edge of which two Archimedean screws slant downward, forming a triangle with a five inch base, the space between their lower ends being bridged by a slightly curved trough of brass. The screws revolve in opposite directions, and close examination shows that they are not mates. The left screw has one "worm" more than its fellow, a deeper flange and a different pitch. Each of the screws revolves on a steel shaft which runs up through its center to the little platform. Three steel marbles weighing something less than three ounces each complete the apparatus Antonio requires to produce perpetual motion with a considerable amount of power.

ANTONIO DE LA TORRE AND HIS PERPETUAL MOTION MACHINE.

The marbles are dropped into the thread of the screws—two in the deep screw and one in the shallow screw. The two in the deep screw descend by gravitation with sufficient force to revolve the flat brass wheel, which turns the shallow screw and sends the marble therein scurrying up to the little platform, where it drops into the flange of the deep screw and becomes in its turn a generator of force at the same instant that one of the other balls, having reached the bottom, is flipped across the brass trough bridge by an ingenious spring attachment at the base of the deep screw's shaft and begins the ascent of the flange of the shallow screw.

There are always two balls descending the deep screw while the third is ascending the shallow screw, and apparently there is nothing to prevent them going on thus forever. By the aid of multipliers the speed is increased so that a little copper fan which acts as a balance wheel revolves 1,500 times in a minute at the end of one horizontal shaft, while a miniature pump works away with considerable power lifting water at the end of another. There is apparently no chance for trickery of any sort, and if everything is as square it looks Antonio de la Torre has written his name high on the roll of the world's immortals.

The House Snake.

In the Ozark mountains there is a small species of the snake tribe known as the "house snake." It is a harmless reptile, but entirely too familiar, going into the houses whenever it can and finding its way into drawers, cupboards and other places in an unaccountable way. By many people it is supposed to bring bad luck to kill one of these serpents, and they are chased out of the house as a dog or chicken would be. As the houses are usually log cabins with crevices between the logs, it is an easy matter for them to enter whenever they feel so disposed.

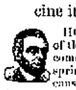
LINCOLN TEA

It is the Best Spring Medicine in the World!



HOW true it is that all of the bad feelings that come over us just as the spring is opening are caused by only a slight derangement of the system.

Life is so different in winter from what it is in summer; that the indoor life that people lead during the winter months produces a derangement of the heart, stomach, liver and kidneys, and the moment that active outdoor life begins you hear the expression, "I don't feel like doing anything! I guess I have the spring fever!" Here is where LINCOLN TEA stands Alone and Unrivaled. It goes, without distressing you, to the root of the trouble and removes the cause, Purifies the Blood, and life is again worth living. For sale by all druggists.

Only two more numbers to complete "Sights and Scenes of the World." No orders will be received after the series runs out. Order back numbers at once.
